

Inclusion, Harmony, Acceptance at the Giant Step Teen Conference 2018

300 teens attend from across metro Detroit to learn how to like and respect each other and make new friends in the process

We need your help
Please consider sponsoring teens to attend our Oct. 23 conference at Wayne State University

Giant Step is Michigan's longest-running conference promoting acceptance and tolerance in hundreds of diverse teens each year. Students talk, share and laugh in a day full of facilitated discussion and thought-provoking exercises. They enter as strangers, but they leave as friends. More than 3,900 teens have attended Giant Step since it started 34 years ago. Always free of charge thanks to generous donors like you.

91% of students said talking with teens from different backgrounds was interesting and educational.

92% said the group leader guided us but let us express our own opinion.

82% said Giant Step improved their confidence in making life choices to lead to a better future.

72% will stay in touch with the new friends from Giant Step.

92% said Giant Step was a positive experience and they want their school to attend again.
